POSITION DESCRIPTION

With a commitment to excellence and diversity, the UC San Diego Department of Education Studies (<http://eds.ucsd.edu>) seeks a dynamic and forward-looking Director of Teacher Education/Lecturer with Security of Employment (Associate Teaching Professor) in Teacher Education starting July 1, 2023 to sustain and build upon our regional and national reputation. The department offers outstanding programs at the undergraduate, teacher credential, and graduate levels. The excellence of our programs is built on our participation in and collaboration with our diverse school communities by promoting and creating justice-oriented learning environments. The M.Ed/Teacher Education Program offers credentials in Multiple Subject Education, Single Subject Education (Science, Mathematics, ELA, and World Languages), Bilingual Authorization, and MA-ASL in American Sign Language - English Bilingual Education.

The teaching faculty series at UC San Diego carries equivalent rights and responsibilities to the more traditional UC San Diego research-focused faculty series. Faculty in this series are expected to place a stronger emphasis on teaching and scholarly activity related to education than on traditional disciplinary research activities (https://www.ucop.edu/academic-personnel-programs/_files/apm/apm-285.pdf). The normal teaching load for Lecturer with Security of Employment (LSOE) faculty is six courses per year. As the emphasis of this position is on teaching and leadership of the TEP program, it will have a reduced teaching load of up to four undergraduate or graduate courses over three quarters each year.

The Director is expected to provide executive leadership and administrative oversight for curriculum and instruction across all teacher education programs; to coordinate and write reports, program proposals, and assessments of the teacher education programs and courses as part of the CTC accreditation process; manage the Teacher Performance Assessment (TPA) process; to manage the budget; to contribute to and participate in district partnerships and other community outreach; to represent TEP on college, university, community, state, and national committees and councils; to participate in fundraising and professional development initiatives; to engage with students, faculty, staff, and stakeholders in formal and informal settings; and collaborate with the UC San Diego CalTeach Program. The Director is expected to monitor student progress and concerns, in collaboration with faculty and Student Affairs staff. Coordination for student teaching includes organizing initial student/Intern teacher placements for all Master's/Credential students and providing administrative oversight.

The ideal candidate for this position has strong executive leadership skills, a collaborative nature, is a problem-solver and strong advocate for public schools, and a highly-competent instructor. This position involves teaching course curricula that consists of individuation, collaboration, and opportunities to learn the complexities of education across the spectrum of PreK-12 school settings. Other responsibilities for this position will include participating in department and university service commitments. A successful applicant must have a thorough understanding of state credentialing licensure and accreditation as set forth by the Commission on Teacher Credentialing.

The University of California is committed to creating and maintaining a community dedicated to the advancement, application, and transmission of knowledge and creative endeavors through academic excellence, where all individuals who participate in University programs and activities can work and learn together in a safe and secure environment, free of violence, harassment, discrimination, exploitation, or intimidation. With this commitment, UC San Diego requires all candidates for academic appointments with tenure or security of employment to complete, sign, and upload the Institutional Reference Check release form entitled "Authorization to Release Form" into RECRUIT as part of their application."
