Topic: Issues that Divide and Unite in the Fight for Equity in Education

This grand event will debut our newest innovative school-centered program in the College of Educational Studies, the Masters of Arts in Curriculum and Design, a dual degree program as a 3+2 hybrid with the Bachelor of Arts and Instruction in Integrated Educational Studies. The Summit will include both local and national speaker sessions as well as workshops in the areas of schools, community, special education and leadership. The title of the summit is “Rise up for Children, Schools, Families, and Community.” Our aim is not to simply present the challenges surrounding education, but rather to present strategies for overcoming the complex issues affecting education, families and communities. Our goal is to be solution-oriented and innovative in our approach to transforming education.
