To Be Held October 21-23 On Site at the Kona Kai Resort in San Diego and Virtually for Those Who Prefer

Please join us for the Fall 2021 Conference of the California Council on Teacher Education this October 21-23 around the theme “Intersectionality—New Knowledge, New Actions in Teacher Education.” The CTE Executive Committee and the CTE Fall Conference Planning Committee have this year decided to offer the Conference in a hybrid format, to accommodate both those wishing to attend in person in San Diego and those preferring to attend and participate virtually. This decision was made after surveying the CTE membership.

Accompanying this announcement is a registration form with both on-site and virtual options, with lower fees for virtual attendees since the live-stream they will receive may not include all Conference events and of course will not include food service and other on-site benefits.

The Fall 2021 Conference Planning Committee believes that this year’s Conference focus on “Intersectionality—New Knowledge, New Actions in Teacher Education” is more important than ever given the growing number of challenges facing teacher education. Please join us for another exciting and impactful CTE Conference.

“Intersectionality—New Knowledge, New Actions in Teacher Education”

By Virginia Kennedy & Vicki Graf
Co-Chairs of Fall 2021 Planning Committee

The time is almost here!

The California Council on Teacher Education’s Fall 2021 Conference Planning Committee invites everyone to the CCTE Fall 2021 Conference, to be held on Thursday, October 21 through Saturday, October 23. After much consideration, the decision was made to offer the conference in two formats, both on-site and virtual, in order to give CCTE delegates and members as well as other conference attendees, a choice that works best for them.

The Kona Kai Resort, which is in a beautiful setting on Point Loma in San Diego and has been enjoyed as the venue for CCTE Fall Conferences for many years, will host the on-site Conference with all of the usual meetings and events. Alternatively, the virtual conference format will involve live-streaming of most sessions and will be facilitated by the tech team who coordinated our recent fully-online Fall 2020 and Spring 2021 Conferences. The Fall 2021 Conference registration form, on one of the following pages, provides details for both on-site and virtual options.

The current re-opening of schools has prompted an urgent examination of how classrooms can ensure equity, access, and inclusion for all students. The Fall Conference theme of “Intersectionality—New Knowledge, New Actions in Teacher Education” provides a challenge to all of us in educator preparation in California and elsewhere to think about and question how our work can advance these efforts.

The keynote speaker at the Conference opening session on Thursday afternoon will be Dr. Pedro Noguera, Dean of the Rossier School of Education at the University of Southern California. His extensive research focuses on the of cross-section of social and economic conditions with education policy and practices.

Our Friday morning keynote speaker will be Dr. Alfredo Artiles, the Lee L. Jacks Professor of Education at Stanford University, who is well-known for his influential studies of race, language, and disability and their implications for teachers and teacher education. Opportunities for participant responses and discussions will follow both keynote presentations (including breakout room “table talks” for virtual attendees!).

Thursday and Friday will also include Research and Practice presentations and the poster session, as well as Policy sessions featuring updates from the Commission on Teacher Credentialing, discussions of state education policy issues, and a look ahead to the CCTE Spring 2022 SPAN Conference in Sacramento. Special Interest Groups (SIGs) and CCTE’s Associated Organizations will also meet during the Conference. There will be a Thursday evening reception and the Friday Awards Luncheon, both included for all on-site registrants,

Saturday’s special capstone program, organized by the California Association for Bilingual Teacher Education (CABTE) and the CCTE Equity and Social Justice SIG, is also open to all conference registrants, both on-site and virtual, and will extend the theme of intersectionality by addressing the important topic of “Intersections of Race and Language in Dual-Language Education.”

The Fall Conference will be preceded on Wednesday, October 20, by four events—the statewide meeting of Education Deans and Directors, the bi-annual meeting of the California Field Coordinators Forum, a meeting of the California Alliance for Inclusive Schooling (CAIS), and the fall quarterly meeting of the CCTE Board of Directors.

And there’s lots more going on too! Please read the other announcements and articles in the Fall 2021 issue of CCNews, and check on the pages that follow immediately here for details on the background on the keynote speakers, the tentative Conference program schedule, and the Conference registration options.

Looking forward to seeing you there!

Fall 2021 Keynote Speakers

Pedro Noguera

Pedro Noguera is the Emery Stoops and Joyce King Stoops Dean of the Rossier School of Education and a Distinguished Professor of Education at the University of Southern California. Prior to joining USC, Noguera served as a Distinguished Professor of Education at the Graduate School of Education and Information Studies at the University of California, Los Angeles. Before joining the faculty at UCLA, he served as a tenured professor and holder of endowed chairs at New York University, Harvard University and the University of California, Berkeley. He is the author of 15 books. His most recent books are A Search for Common Ground: Conversations About the Toughest Questions in K-12 Education (Teachers College Press) with Rick Hess and City Schools and the American Dream: Still Pursuing the Dream (Teachers College Press) with Esa Syeed.

Alfredo Artiles

Alfredo J. Artiles is the Lee L. Jacks Professor of Education in the School of Education at Stanford University. His programmatic work engages the question “how do educational equity remedies create new injustices and what are effective ways to reduce these paradoxes?” His scholarship examines the dual nature of disability as an object of protection and a tool of stratification. More specifically, he aims to understand how responses to disability intersections with race, social class, and language advance or hinder educational opportunities for disparate groups of students. For instance, he is studying the cultural-historical contexts of racial disparities in special education and whether a disability diagnosis is associated with differential consequences for minoritized groups (e.g., segregation, quality, and type of services). He and his colleagues have led national and regional technical assistance initiatives at the state and school district levels to address these paradoxes.
