Keynote Address: Jeff Duncan-Andrade
(Raza Studies and Education, San Francisco State University).

“Equality or Equity: Toward a Model of Community Responsive Education”

There is too little research and writing done by community responsive educators to document effective practices in schools serving vulnerable and wounded youth. Duncan-Andrade draws from 30 years of teaching and research on effective teaching practices in schools around the world to provide insights to educators and school leaders on effective systems change, program building, and daily educational practices. This discussion equips leaders and educators to leverage research-based critiques of up-by-your-bootstraps theories of individualized success being pedaled to schools. In their place, it offers concrete, time-honored, research based strategies that foreground relationships, relevance, and responsibility as essential ingredients to fundamentally altering the business-as-usual approach that continues to fail so many of our young people. Through the voices of young people, educators, and cross-disciplinary research this talk reissues license for community responsive practices that transform engagement and educational outcomes for all children, relieving undeserved suffering in schools and communities.

4:15 p.m. to 5:45 p.m. - Arts Integration as a Humanizing Practice: Point Loma III

Engaging Students in Collaborative Learning with Visual and Performing Arts.

Presented by the CCTE Arts Education Special Interest Group.

Presenters: Eric Engdahl (CSU East Bay), Jody Moody (Texas A&M University) & Nadja Conway (Loyola Marymount University).

Educators agree that they have succeeded in delivering effective lessons when students are participating in discussions, demonstrating interest in a topic, and are curious to learn more. While the classroom vision for many teachers includes a collaborative learning environment, it can be challenging to identify and implement the most effective strategies to achieve that outcome. Making meaningful connections to student cultural, community and personal assets through art is one such strategy. Arts integration can be an asset based instructional approach focusing on student strengths, supporting all learners, and the foundation for building a positive classroom community. Through art, students are able to reflect upon their own culture, world view and challenge perceptions and misconceptions that have been reinforced through oppression. This is a continuation of the Fall 2021 CCTE interactive session, “Anti-Racist Teaching Through the Arts.” Art and theater activities that support Social Emotional Learning (SEL) in the diverse classroom will be shared. Please come prepared to be active participants.

Moderators: Antionette Linton (California State University, Fullerton) & Kara Ireland D’Ambrosio (San Jose State University).

This fireside chat will be a working meeting where we develop a communication strategy to be employed between the universities’ college of education programs and school district partnerships. The focus of the meeting is to streamline the field placement process while highlighting the importance of the district role in teacher development from preservice to inservice. Our goal will be to share this letter with our deans and districts. The potential impact is that school districts have an outlet to express their needs and concerns with the placement process and mentor matching/responsibilities. With this knowledge, we will be able to support districts and collaborate and create a streamlined placement process for the future. Long-term we hope to set a practice for strong communication and field placement processes with districts. We plan on following up on this work at the spring 2023 CCTE SPAN conference. We encourage Credential Program Coordinators/Advisors, Field Placement Coordinators, District administrators, District Human Resource Personnel and any others interested in supporting the teacher placement process to attend.

Featuring Lorena German (Co-Founder of #Disrupt Texts and the Multicultural Classroom).

“ReHumanizing Education Through Anti-Racist and Anti-Bias Practices.”

Anti racist and anti bias teaching are not simply conceptual. They are also praxis; how you teach your subject matter, how you design learning experiences, how you relate with students, how you move about in your institution, and more. It is through these practices that we work on healing as an outcome of education as well as rehumanizing what happens in our institutions and within four walls. In addition to identifying racist and biased practices, we must focus on developing the practices that will achieve our anti racist and anti bias goals. In this keynote, we will explore frameworks and strategies for implementation, including what our academic elders have created for us.

Followed by response conversation between Lorena German, Betina Hsieh (California State University, Long Beach), and Terrelle Sales (Pepperdine University).

10:45 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. - Sixth CCTE Fall Conference Session: Conversation with AACTE. Point Loma II

The session will be facilitated by Kimberly White-Smith (CCTE Vice President for AACTE, dean of the School of Leadership and Educational Sciences at the University of San Diego, and an AACTE Board member) and Marquita Grenot-Scheyer (California State University, Long Beach & AACTE National Board member).

CCTE Outstanding Dissertation Award to Rosemary Wrenn (Cuesta College & California Polytechnic State University, San Luis Obispo) for dissertation entitled Towards Anti-Racism as Stance: White Women Teachers Committing to Transformation (2021, California State University, Fresno).

CCTE Distinguished Teacher Educator Award to Vicki Graf (Loyola Marymount University). The Distinguished Teacher Educator Award recognizes individuals who have demonstrated lasting commitment and leadership to CCTE and the California teacher education community.

CCTE Innovative Practices in Teacher Education Award to California Polytechnic State University San Luis Obispo School of Education and Liberal Studies Team. This award is given in recognition of programs which are focused on practices developing and implementing anti-bias and anti-racist teaching in teacher education. The Cal Poly SLO team is recognized for two transformative pedagogical shifts: the creation of a course focused specifically on developing Teachers of Color by Dr. Oscar Navarro and Dr. Tina Cheuk and the faculty co-sponsorship of a student-led club, Educators of Color, co-led by Dr. Tina Cheuk and Dr. Amanda Frye. Both programs have made significant impact in supporting the development, growth, and learning of educators of color. The centering and honoring of future educators of color in a predominantly White space through structural investment in these two ways embodies the spirit of anti-bias/anti-racist pedagogies and practices that support the diversity of P-12 educators in California.

9:00 a.m. to Noon. - Eighth CCTE Fall Conference Session:
Exploring Ethnic Studies.
Paid Fall Conference registration required. On-site and virtual options.

The Saturday morning program is sponsored by the Department of Educator and Leadership Programs in the Office of the Chancellor of California State University.
Ethnic Studies is a new state graduation requirement for students in the class of 2026; however, beyond a single high school class, ethnic studies encompasses rich ways of knowing, seeing the world, engaging with one another, and critically thinking through multiple lenses, elements at the heart of anti-bias/anti-racist teaching. Please join us for a special Saturday morning session focused on the teacher educator’s role in the Ethnic Studies implementation movement. We will begin our day with an introduction and framing for the session with Dr. James Fabionar (University of San Diego) discussing key issues in ethnic studies and teacher preparation and then engage with a panel of K-12 educators and educational stakeholders moderated by Dr. Miguel Zavala (California State University, Los Angeles) to unpack how teacher educators can partner with work already happening in schools and communities. Finally, attendees will break into facilitated discussion/working groups for a chance to reflect on their role in the work moving forward as we look ahead to our 2023 fall conference themed around Ethnic Studies.
